

Marko Vladislavljević graduated from the Department of Statistics and Informatics in 2008 and completed master studies at the Department of Econometrics in 2011 at the Faculty of Economics, University of Belgrade. He currently attends doctoral studies at the same faculty, and graduate studies in the Department of Psychology, Faculty of Philosophy in Belgrade. Since 2008, he is working as a researcher at the Foundation for the Advancement of Economics FREN in Belgrade. During his master studies he was a teaching associate at the Faculty of Economics (courses: Economic Statistics and Market Research), and prior to that, in 2008, he worked in the Strategic marketing (today IPSOS Strategic), also as a researcher. His research interests include a wide range of applied economics and psychology topics with a focus on gender equality, poverty, labor market and identity. He was involved in several research projects funded by the World Bank, ILO and UN organizations. As part of FREN's team he has won several scholarships for research: Analysis of the impact on migration and remittances on social protection in the countries of the Western Balkans (RRPP, 2014), The inactivity of older persons in Serbia (Erste, 2013), Enabling flourishing and development of social entrepreneurship for innovative and inclusive society (FP7, 2013) and Gender wage gap in the Western Balkans (RRPP, 2012).
